8 THINGS TO NOTICE THIS SUMMER:

No. 7 'BUTTONED UP'

A priest from the diocese came to talk about her work the other day. She works in a team with other clergy and with lay people too, in a context rather different from the average parish and in the midst of a time of change. She was caught up in some rather complex dynamics – and it felt like she was struggling to get a hold on any of it.

Barry Oshry, one of my favourite organisational theorists, has a passage in his classic book Seeing Systems, in which he compares daily life in an organisation to a game of pinball. "Sometimes life in the organisation feels like a game of pinball, and we're the little metal ball. We start each day launched into a mysterious world of bumpers, lights, bells and whistles. Lights flash on and off. Buzzers sound. Gates open and close, sometimes propelling us at high speed to some other centre of the action, and sometimes letting us drop quietly into a hole. All of this is a mystery to us. Is this just a set of random events?"

Sound familiar?

Oshry's contention is that our problem is that we are not seeing the big picture.

In my study, where clergy come to talk, there is a tub of assorted buttons. Often – as the other morning – I reach for the tub and grab a handful of them. "Ok," I say, "let's say this [nice big blue button] is 'John', and this [smaller green button] is you. Where is Sam? And Sally? And how would you arrange yourselves relative to each other?" Often there's an initial look of bewilderment. This is surely childish, not what they've come to hear from someone who is supposed to be more sophisticated in his grasp of organisational life! Buttons?! But then they start to position things. "Well, I think she should go here, but in fact she is usually here," and they move the buttons around... Whole worlds of meaning and subtlety can be created on a tabletop, and in the process we suddenly notice, together, what we hadn't seen – a pattern, or an alliance, or someone 'in the wrong place' or 'left out of the conversation'.

You don't need buttons. You can use pens, or post-its, or condiments! The trick is to externalise what is internal and to give ourselves space to notice what proximity prevents us from seeing. And you don't need to be in a complex organisational dynamic: sometimes life in families, or in communities is just as confusing and leaves us struggling to see what is, in fact, right in front of us.

Often what we need is not another theory, or model, or theology: just a chance to see anew what we thought we already knew!

VISIT OUR WEBSITE

If you haven't visited the parish website for a while, www.spkb.org, you'll notice a change when you do!

Launched this month is a new, fresher, simpler and more outward-looking website with lots of new functionality. It will be a key tool in communicating with the world and our stakeholders in the future – and we are grateful to the team who've been working on it, especially Jim and Max.

GALA PIANO CONCERT

Saturday
17th October
2015
at 7.30pm

Following the fund raising birthday concert in April, we have raised over £36,000 which has enabled us to buy a magnificent 1990 Steinway concert grand piano. The piano was originally chosen by Alfred Brendel for the Queen's Hall Edinburgh, who have cared for it since 1990, and where it has been played by many world class pianists. For the inaugural concert at St Paul's Knightsbridge, we are very fortunate that Howard Shelley has agreed to direct and play the Emperor piano concerto by Beethoven – a great work to showcase the instrument. The programme will commence with Mozart's Figaro overture with the Thames Chamber Orchestra under their principal conductor, Keith Marshall, and the concert will end with Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony.

Ticket prices £15 / £20 / £35 - available online at www.spkb.org

PROJECT 'O' – latest videos online now

Between now and Advent Sunday, we're going on a creative journey. Members of the congregation – Thomas Hyde, composer, and Clare McCaldin, mezzo-soprano – along with Stevie Farr, Director of Music, and the St Paul's choir and choreographer Hubert Essakow are creating a work of music, song and dance in an interpretation of The O Antiphons of Advent. O will be performed at St Paul's Knightsbridge on Advent Sunday at 6.00pm on 29 November 2015. A series of films, under the title O – The O Antiphons, will record the creation of the work. All are welcome to the service. You can become part of the creative journey by following its progress online. Visit www.spkb.org

Pilgrimages & Trips

IONA in SEPTEMBER

with Bishop Michael Colclough
7 - 11 September 2015

The Isle of Iona, home of St Columba and for centuries a centre for Gaelic Monasticism, is a luminous and 'thin' place where the gap between earth and heaven seems easy to traverse. Situated on the West Coast of the Isle of Mull in the Inner Hebrides off Scotland's West Coast, this short retreat led by Bishop Michael will give time and space to reflect on God's calling to you – in good company and with wise counsel on hand.

Please pray for the retreatants from this parish – including Roland Brunner, Nicky Lindsay and Caroline Docker.

POLAND in SEPTEMBER

PARISH TRIP TO KRAKOW, POLAND, 17th - 20th September 2015: THEOLOGY AFTER AUSCHWITZ with Fr Alan Gyle

The central theme of our forthcoming visit to Krakow is that we need to explore – as thinking, believing people – the reality of evil and the collective potential of humanity for evil as well as good, if we are to be mature in our theological outlook. None of us wants to confront evil – and perhaps we instinctively reach for the remote control when the latest images of human atrocity flash onto our screens on the daily news. But for many of us, confronting truth is ultimately more creative than denying it or avoiding it, however briefly painful that may seem. And if we are to do so, and to engage this dimension of our human experience, where better to do it than in good and prayerful company among friends – and with thoughtful guidance along the way. Fuller information about the planned trip to Kraków and Auschwitz ('Theology after Auschwitz' with Fr Alan Gyle) is available at the back of church.

*Participants please note the Supper and study evening on Wednesday 2nd September, and the File Evening on Sunday 6th September.

WALSINGHAM in OCTOBER

Fr. Andrew Sloane will be leading another Day Pilgrimage to the Shrine of Our Lady of Walsingham in Norfolk on Saturday 3 October 2015. Please sign the sign up sheet at the back of the church if you are interested. Full details later.

Being Human: How to Become the Person You Were Meant to Be

Tuesday 29 September 2015
from 18:30-20:00

What kind of person do you want to be? It's easy to go through life without ever really considering what we're here for and who we want to be. How can we think not just about what we do with our lives, but who we're becoming while living them?

Steve Chalke says that God calls each one of us to play our part in his plan for a just and loving world, and it's finding our place in that story that will shape us and our lives into everything we were meant to be.

How can we hear God's call to us in a world that tells us that peace and justice are a dream, and that there are so many better, quicker fixes for our lives?

Steve Chalke is the senior minister of Oasis Church Waterloo. In 1985, he founded Oasis Trust which now has over 5,000 staff pioneering educational, healthcare and housing initiatives in the UK and overseas. He is also the founder of Stop the Traffik and UN Special Advisor on Community Action Against Human Trafficking, and a well-known author and broadcaster. His latest book is Being Human (Hodder 2015).

This event will include plenty of time for questions and answers.

Science and Religion: Gillian Straine

Sunday 4 October 2015
from 13:00-14:00

The Revd Dr Gillian Straine was a Pastoral Assistant at St Paul's Knightsbridge before her ordination training. She has a PhD in experimental atmospheric physics, trained in science communication, and is a priest in the Church of England. She is the author of Introducing Science and Religion, A Path Through Polemic (SPCK 2014).

Science and religion are often portrayed as locked in intractable conflict – as opponents that offer competitive and mutually-exclusive ways of seeing the world. Gillian Straine says that this is a myth, and a dangerous one. From her own experience and expertise as both scientist and priest, she will offer us ways of understanding and negotiating the conflict with integrity and holding together belief in God with a rich understanding and respect for science.

Reflection

8 THINGS TO NOTICE THIS SUMMER: No. 8

'RESOLUTION & RE-ENTRY'

The long-awaited summer break is almost at its end. In a few short days it will be time to gather belongings, to re-pack cases and to return to the daily round of life in London.

Perhaps you've taken up the invitation to reflect week by week. If not, you can still do so, online at www.spkb.org/think/reflections. Seven reflections on how we use our time, how we prioritise it and how we look at life. What have you learned? What have you been reminded of this summer? What intentions do you have?

Hanging onto intentions and insights is hard. The engineers at NASA knew that if it seemed hard to get a rocket from the surface of the earth to the surface of the moon, the really hard bit was getting people safely back. Re-entry into the earth's atmosphere is a hot and turbulent process that stretches technology and human nerve to the limits. So it is with all transitions. Transitions, shifts, moves from one place to another – whether from job to job, from home to home or just from holiday back to daily life – shouldn't be underestimated. Much gets lost in the process, including insights.

In good coaching conversations (and all of this, dear readers, has been a sort of coaching process at one remove), part of the time and energy spent by the pair or group towards the end of their time is spent 'designing actions' and noticing that the best insights in the world are worth nothing if they don't change things afterwards.

David Clutterbuck, one of the great contemporary theorists of good, productive conversations, often uses a simple framework at the end of his time with people. It is his Four 'I's Model. Let's recap, he will say. What ISSUES have we touched on (i.e. what have we been talking or thinking about?). What IDEAS have you had (which is to say, what creative thinking occurred in our time together?). What INSIGHTS were there? (that is, what did we learn?). What INTENTIONS do you have? (i.e., what will we do as a result of our learning?). This process of reviewing and resolving is often the bit that gets missed in life, isn't it! We have good conversations or insightful thinking time alone – but then we are so busy or distracted that we rush on and allow all the insights to evaporate and life to remain the same. It all gets lost – or burned up on re-entry into normal life. It can be a good discipline to stop and be intentional about what's occurred, before the hurly-burly of moving on: ISSUES, IDEAS, INSIGHTS, INTENTIONS?

What have yours been this summer? And what will now be different?
